

I am an executive secretary and love wearing long, chunky earrings. Even though I'm a bit too old for them, my friends say they suit me and I look good with them. Is it alright if I wear them to work?

Long, oversized earrings may be worn by anyone who loves them regardless of age. However they should be reserved only for social gatherings. In business, large jewelry or any accessory that may be distracting or draws attention to itself is inappropriate and is to be avoided.
